Village Fathers Seek Improvement At Dump Site—Plan Activities

Board to seek solution of dumping problem—Ask people to place refuse away from road—plan clean-up days May 17 and 18—Begin tax collection June 1—Plan fire truck repairs.

Clean-up days for Addison will be Thursday and Friday, May 17 and 18 it was decided at a meeting of the Village Board held Monday night in the City Hall. The board also approved repairs to the Phoenix Hose truck engine, asked that the local property owners cooperate to repair sidewalks which have become uneven during the past winter, discussed the cleanup of the dump on the Addison-Rathbone road and approved the collection of taxes to begin June 1. Fire police were appointed as follows, George Little, George Moore, Charles Rice and Raymond Hargrave.

Water Pressure Down
Fire Chief John O'Keefe appeared before the Board relative to repairs to the Phoenix truck and stated that the truck was in poor condition and needed repairing. During the course of the discussion he mentioned the fact that a pump is necessary in many places in the community. He also stated that the water pressure is from 10 to 15 percent below what it used to be along Main street.

Cut Speeding
Police Chief Earl Leavenworth appeared to ask that some sort of no-speeding signs be placed at the village limits to cut the excessive speed here. Trustee Orr pointed out that in order to be legal signs must meet certain state standards as to size and illustration, there must be one of these signs at every entrance to the village. The cost and upkeep of the signs would be prohibitive for this village.

Highway Department
The State Highway Department will be asked to post the state highway roads leading into the village for a 35 mile speed limit.

Help Improve Dump
H. F. Brumm of the Hornell office of the Department of Public Works of the state sent a letter to the Board calling attention to the unsightly condition of the roadside at the dumping grounds on the Rathbone road. Mr. Brumm pointed out that the state is making an endeavor to improve the highway approaches to villages and cities and suggested something be done with the dump. He asked for suggestions from the Village Fathers as to what they believe can be done to improve the situation.

The trustees feel that the village should buy a piece of available land to use for a dump, but are in a quandary as to where this can be found without emptying into either the Tuscarora Creek, the Canisteo River or on private land. An attempt will be made to level off the dump and the village authorities

This was the first meeting of the summer season in the clubhouse.

Some of the members feel that the club could sponsor an old fashioned field day there with races throughout the day for young people, a baseball game or softball, music, fireworks and picnic lunches on the grounds. And games could be set up on the grounds during the day for the young and old. No official action was taken by the members at the meeting.

The play abounds in comic situations, lively dialogue and sparkling humor.

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

Premier Chamberlain had to endure attacks in the House of Commons Monday as members heckled him because of British defeats and withdrawal from Norway. He attributed the defeat to lack of air bases and the small force sent to oppose the Germans.

Nazis are driving over Norwegian mountains in an attempt to relieve the force still clinging to Narvik. Surrounded by British and Norse troops the invaders in Narvik are in great need of supplies and reinforcements.

The British and French fleets have concentrated a huge water force in the Mediterranean. The Balkans are a virtual powder keg as the small nations aim to keep out of the war and both belligerents are striving to win allies among them.

The Dutch fear a Nazi invasion of their country as German troops have been reported moving in near the Dutch border. The Dutch have cancelled all leaves of troops under arms and are watching every suspected member of the pro-German groups for fear of a "fifth" column betraying the little country. The army is ready to open the dikes at the first threat of Nazis at the border.

German claims of having sunk a British battleship are stoutly denied by the latter who admit they lost a destroyer by bombing the day the Nazis reported sinking the heavily armored ship with a single bomb.

Concert Monday Night to Send A. H. S. Orchestra To National Music Festival in Albany May 18

Many local people desire part in sending students to Regional Competition—Single admissions and "patrons" tickets to be offered citizens wishing to have part in sending young musicians.

Plans have been virtually completed for the preliminary concert and trip of the Addison High School Orchestra to the National Music Festival in Albany. The local concert will be held Monday evening, May 13 and the orchestra will compete in Albany Saturday, May 18.

Great enthusiasm is being expressed around Addison for the trip which will take young musicians of the school into competition with students from other states. Many persons have asked Glenn Sprague, head of the Music Department and others connected with the school how they could help in making it possible for the orchestra to go to Albany. Some have offered cars and others have volunteered to give funds towards meeting the expenses of the trip. Many business men have stated the trip would do more to advertise Addison as a progressive community than anything ever done here before.

Officials of the school are not willing any citizens should be asked to sign a paper for funds, or to be put on the spot in any way by a fund-raising campaign. However, it is believed many really desire to have a substantial part in sending the school music unit to the National festival so a plan was worked out which should offer an opportunity for those who wish to support the trip, and still not cause embarrassment to anyone who does not feel they can contribute.

The concert will be put on by the orchestra with the ordinary differential in rates between student and adult tickets which will be sold throughout the community to anyone who desires to attend. At the same time there will be offered special "patrons" tickets for those who wish to have a special part in sending the boys and girls. These patron tickets will be good for two admissions in reserved sections of the auditorium and any person may become a patron, or sponsor of the trip with a contribution of $1 or more. No pressure will be used to sell "patrons" tickets, but for those who desire to show their special appreciation of the work of the school, opportunity will be afforded in this way of doing so.

Many have asked for details regarding the benefits of these National Festivals, and the history of the movement. It may be said they are an outgrowth of the public consciousness, or musical re-awakening of the past few years. The events are conducted for the benefit of the participating students and the schools they represent. It is not a matter of who wins, or which organization is the best performed, but rather the evaluation of actual achievements in the work rendered and the rating of that work in terms of competitive values. Thus, through the competitive festival events boys and girls learn to take applause and criticism in their stride.

For several years before 1937 there were no such festivals held each year. The idea of such an up-to-date festival in the country was first conceived in 1938. Beginning in 1938 there were regional competitions, or festivals held in each of the regions. The rapid growth each year is evident from the figures. In 1938 31,804 high school students took part in the National Regionals and in 1939 the number competing had jumped to 43,596. At the same time between four and five million students participated in the sectionals and state finals last year.

Region 4, in which Addison competes is one of the largest both in population and number of states concerned. The ten states embraced in Region 4 are Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, (Continued on Page 5)

A SORRY CHAPTER

With greatly mixed emotions the world learned last week of the withdrawal of British and French forces from central Norway. At first it did not seem possible for many persons to believe the Allies had accepted defeat in a period of less than three weeks of fighting on the Norwegian front. What answer can the British give for so quickly accepting ignominious defeat and ingloriously deserting the poor Norwegians struggling against the Nazi invaders?

Part of the answer is strewn all up and down the rough Norwegian coast, but more of it could probably be found in London than in Norway.

When Hitler struck so quickly on the 9th of April the neutral world ran through a series of thrills and chills. First it seemed the Nazis would win Norway with a few scattering skirmishes—then it appeared British sea power might cut off the invaders and doom the expedition to failure; an allied hope which glimmered as air transports poured in more German troops and Nazi ships leaked through the Skaggarak to Oslo. Norwegian morale mounted quickly when the British announced landing of troops at several points on the Norwegian coast and the Norse soldiers rallied to recapture a few positions from which the invaders had driven them. Allied forces attempted to strike quickly at the Germans above Trondheim, but an advance detachment of 1,500 men was all but decimated at Vist and compelled to drop back to Steinkjer. The forces landed at Andalsnes quickly spread over the railroad system to Støren just south of Trondheim while other allied troops followed the rail line east to support the Norse fighters trying to check the mechanized German forces.

For the first time the war turned into a race for positions, and indications pointed to a major battle developing near Trondheim for that important rail center. Then there was silence, deep and ominous silence on the part of Britain, silence only broken by the shocking announcement Dombas and Andalsnes had been forsaken. A few hours later the debacle was completed by the terse British statement that Namsos had also been evacuated—the expeditionary forces had all been withdrawn from southern Norway.

As for the Norse soldiers; they gallantly covered the retreat of their short-lived allies and then gave up the unequal battle.

The British failed to hold their own in Norway against crack Nazi troops and fighting planes because their men were unprepared for mechanized fighting. Early arrivals had no artillery or anti-aircraft guns, nor did they have supporting planes. They were sent into 1940 warfare armed with 1918 tactics.

The present chapter of the Norwegian campaign—who knows there will be any other—is written in the same language of failure which has described British diplomacy and action or inaction since Mussolini first twisted the Lion's tail on his swashbuckling trip to Ethiopia. It is another example of the Chamberlain policy—appeasement it was called at Munich. Probably the British Premier will have a few fancy names for this but it could be translated no matter the spelling into "safety first".

For seven months when London critics demanded action against Hitler Chamberlain kept saying to show him a battlefield and the Nazi would be fought. After Finland was compelled to accept Russian terms Chamberlain offered to send an army through Scandinavia. Then came the invasion of Norway, the presentation of a battlefield unimpeded by concrete fortifications, but the British war cabinet made only a feeble effort to fight in Norway.

Events of the past ten days have lowered the British battle colors farther than they have fallen since the Norwegian conquerors. The British cabinet appears tottering as this is written and neutral nations in the battle area are wondering if there is any fight left in the Lion after all.

Chamberlain in deserting the Norse troops almost as his men saw their first fire has written another sorry page in the book of indecision which describes his tenure of power in Britain.

TIMES CHANGE

Times do change. Witness the truly magnificent spectacle of thousands of merchants in virtually every county of the nation striving to dispose of the South's surplus cotton! This is the kind of Union that Abraham Lincoln visualized over half a century ago amidst the bitterness of the bloodiest civil war in history.

Cotton is the life of the South. Cotton is bread and butter to millions of people, both in the South and other sections of the country. A glutted cotton market imperils the welfare of these millions.

Cotton exports are at dismal lows. The solution to the cotton problem must be found, in part at least, at home. This, in a nutshell, is the impelling motive behind the cotton "campaign".

Every resource of modern distribution is being called into action. During the week of May 17 through May 25, shoppers will see store fronts and showcases banked with cotton products and appealing posters mutely reminding them that by purchasing a cotton goods article they will be helping their neighbors "down South". The promotional campaign in behalf of "King Cotton" is far more than merely another sales promotion stunt. It is indicative of a new era, an era in which organized cooperation between producers and retailers promises to reign supreme, the kind of cooperation that benefits consumers. Efficiency, and service at minimum cost, are its bywords.

Yes, there is far more than appears to the eye in the promotion of cotton week. It is a powerful example of Lincoln's "more perfect Union".

ON TO ALBANY

Seldom have Addison people been more enthusiastic about any event than they are over the prospective trip of the Addison High Orchestra to compete in the National contest at Albany May 18. On every hand there have been expressions of confidence that our group of young people will make a fine name for the community at this big musical gathering.

When it first became known AHS Orchestra was eligible to compete many persons expressed great concern for fear some big obstacles might be placed in the way of the trip. Others wondered if parents of the children would consent to such a journey which necessitates a stay overnight for the young players. The question of financing the trip was also raised, which of course was necessary. But all the mountains that seemed to loom so high in the way have appeared to level down. The Board of Education unanimously endorsed the trip. The parents of every child have signed consent slips allowing the players to go 100 per cent. Now the plans for raising finances are going forward.

The one project in which the greatest number of local citizens can demonstrate their cooperation is the concert which will be given by the school musical organizations. A nominal admission will be charged for this concert and the auditorium should be packed with more than 800 Addisonites proud to give the boys and girls a rousing send off to the concert. Many people have expressed the desire to have a part in sending the orchestra by offering a personal contribution either in money or use of a car. This list is growing day by day. Addison people have always shown themselves loyal supporters of worthwhile causes, whatever the time or need. Those planning the trip do not want to have any person embarrassed by solicitation so there will be no paper circulated to sign up contributions. Those who do wish to give towards the trip may hand the money to Music Director Sprague, Andrew W. Knebel, or leave it at the Advertiser office. Public recognition will be made of all donors.

This is our orchestra and most Addison citizens feel justly proud of them and their achievements in the county and state competitions. Nearly every person in the community will want to come out to hear the orchestra in the concert which precedes the trip to Albany. Scores will be glad of the opportunity to contribute some additional sum to the fund needed to take the trip.

Let's all turn out for the concert and give our boys and girls a rousing send-off!

THE PRIME DIDN'T TAKE

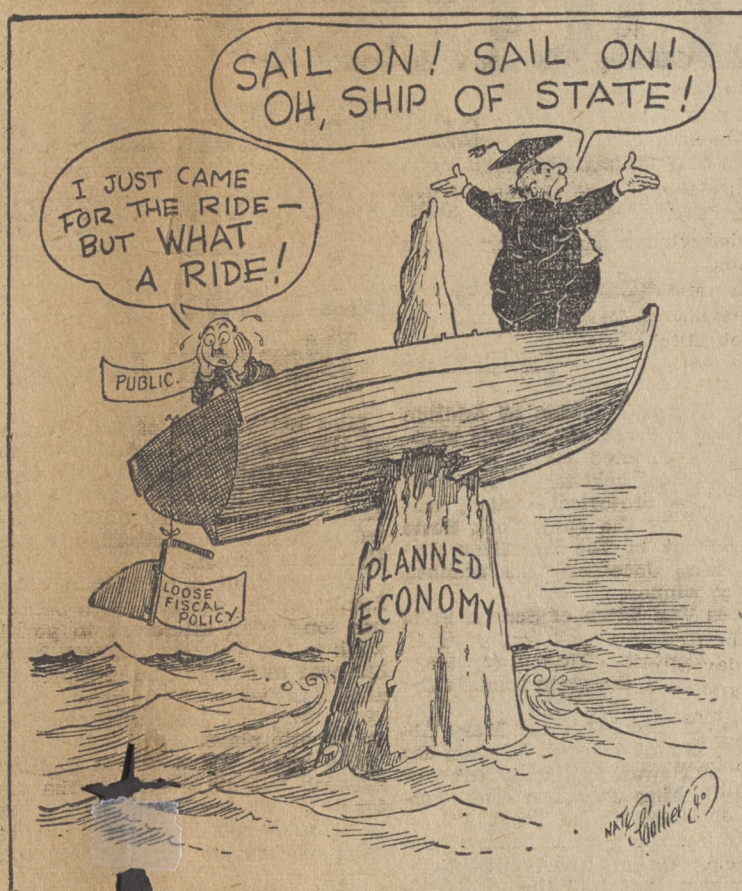

The so-called "economy drive" in Congress, as the cynics expected, has shot its feeble bolt. The gentlemen of Capitol Hill are attempting to outdo each other in spending the taxpayer's money. For this is general election year, and it is popular political belief that money makes the mare go when it comes to getting votes.

That may be practical sounding politics, but it is a suicidal economic doctrine. At the moment, the nation is only about $2,500,000,000 short of reaching the present federal debt limit of $45,000,000,000. In other words, as a people, we are some $42,500,000,000 in the hole—and that doesn't include federal guaranteed obligations, which run into several billions more. The bulk of that debt has been created since depression started, despite the highest peace-time taxes in our history. We've primed the pump until the golden flood ran over—but the prime didn't take. It is obvious to anyone that recovery has not been produced. It is equally obvious that business is more worried about the future now than it was ten years ago. It is obvious that little or no dent has been made in the total of the unemployed. It is obvious that government farm relief, which has cost an incredible sum, has been practically a flop.

And still Congress goes on spending in the same old way. The Treasury still pays out close to two dollars for every dollar taken in, charging the unpaid balance to the debt. And the outlook for a sane and solvent future becomes steadily more bleak.

There is a cure for this—a cure that can come only from the people. When the voters are no longer enticed by lavish deficit-spending—when they stop looking to Washington as the source of all financial blessings—when they turn back to local self-government and self-rule, as against federal paternalism—when they let it be decisively known that they are weary of having their elected representatives spend them and their children and their children's children into potential bankruptcy—there will be a reduction of government expenses. And it won't happen until then.

THE SNAG

Mothers Day! There are certain words which frequently without fully realizing their sound or meaning. The word Mother is one of them. It sounds nice when we say it and it means much more when we think of it in its full meaning, which few of us grasp. It seems strange that we do not need a special day set apart to remember Mother. Of course most of us realize that commercial interests are behind the naming of the day, but then propaganda often brings us many pleasant thoughts as well as evil.

Perhaps some thought of Mother can be expressed in the poem Miss Corinne Bausch clipped from her Mother's scrapbook.

"God could not be in every place,
With loving hands to help erase
The teardrops from each baby's face,
And so He thought of Mother."

He could not send us here alone
And leave us thus to fate unknown
Without providing for His own,
The outstretched arms of Mother.

God could not watch us night and day
And kneel beside our crib to pray,
Or kiss our little aches away;
And so He sent us Mother."

Many have lost their Mothers during the past year and to them as to others without their Mothers, the day will have poignant memories. To those of us who do have Mothers, we can try in some little way to make her realize that we still love her and think of her. It is in the little things that greatest happiness comes. Few of us are gifted to do big things.

I'm not opposed to drinking, if done in moderation. However, I am sore at heart when I see children and wives made the victim of someone's drinking. Two events in recent weeks have impressed me and made me sort of upset inside. The first was a drunken husband's action on the street which embarrassed his wife no end and made bystanders turn away from the scene so as not to confuse her the more.

The second was a much more flagrant affair. A mother left a father custodian of a child of about three years. The father sneaked away for a drink leaving the child, who in his little way wandered away. When mother returned father and child were gone. She knew where to look for the father but neither could find the child. They finally found the little fellow down the street in the road, where he might have been struck by a passing car in his childish ignorance. Then the father, to assuage his own feeling "bawled" the kid out for running away. I felt like smashing that father right on the nose. I wonder who that father would have blamed had the child been killed.

I'm still thinking what a good time Frank Gimane must have had in Florida, and was reminded all the more of it this week when I opened the Erie May Magazine and saw Frank and the Missus smiling as big as life in a picture taken in Miami.

Dick Ferris was in an embarrassing position one day this week and to anyone not knowing the circumstances might have appeared as a home wrecker. But it was all in fun as the fellows in the Pep-O Bakery can tell you. Dick and

How, What and Why

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply of your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Hardy Holly?
B. E. W. asks: "Is there a variety of American holly which is hardy enough to withstand the climate of southern New York? If so, where can it be bought?"

Dr. A. M. S. Pridham of the floriculture department replies: "American holly is unquestionably hardy in that section of the state. Some plants are growing well in Rochester, and one or two plants in Ithaca. With some care the plants might be grown in Johnson City. 'Extra care should be taken to prepare the soil by adding peatmoss. Mix it with the soil so that there is at least one-third peatmoss and two-thirds soil. Provide gravel for drainage in the bottom of the hole. Once the plant is set, mulch the soil with a layer one-inch deep of peatmoss. Thorough watering is important.'"

"Annual care should include the use of burlap screen to shade the plant during the winter. This might be left off until after Christmas. Plants no doubt may be obtained from nurseries on Long Island."

The Same Trouble
M. J. asks: "Can you tell me how to get rid of tiny white worms and black flies on my house plants? Someone else inquired about this same trouble and were told that the young and adults of the fungus gnat were responsible."

Dr. W. E. Blauvelt of the entomology department answers: "We have sent you a circular on how to control the fungus gnats that infest your house plants. Ordinarily these insects are not very injurious and I would not worry about them unless they become very abundant."

Horseheads—Mayor Oliver D. Eisenhart is personally stopping speeders on the street here as well as members of the police department, to stop the practice.

Llewellyn Towner, "Hobie" Chatfield and Don Burlingame are always raising call over there and say and do some great tricks on each other.

Frank Gimane, a tried and true friend from Buffalo, sent an item which I think is well worth reprinting and so with his permission I'd like to have you read this item on "worries" which at times have bothered us all.

"There are only two reasons for worrying. You are either successful or you are not successful. If you are successful, there is nothing to worry about. If you are not successful, there is only two things to worry about, your health is either good or you are sick."

"If you are healthy, there is nothing to worry about and if you are sick, there are only two things to worry about—you are either going to get well or you are going to die. If you are going to get well, there is nothing to worry about and if you are not going to get well, there are only two things to worry about—you are either going to Heaven or you are not going to Heaven."

"If you are going to Heaven, there is nothing to worry about, and if you are going to the other place, you will be so doggone busy shaking hands with old friends you won't have time to worry—so why worry?"

That's all.

QUESTION 1. Are there poisonous snakes in New York state, and, if so, are these snakes increasing in number?

ANSWER. Two definite types of poisonous snakes, the rattler and the copperhead, are found in New York. Both are found in Rockland, Orange and Suffolk counties and in some of the other southern counties of the state. Rattles occur frequently in Central New York.

Many more people are going out into the woods where these snakes are, to hunt or fish or hike, and this has a tendency to decrease the number of the snakes.

On the other hand, about 4,000,000 acres of land are being abandoned for farming purposes and returned to native growth, largely scrubby forest, creating conditions agreeable for the development of the life of these snakes. Whether there are more poisonous snakes in New York state now than there were 10 years ago is not known.—Prof. Nelson Brown, forester.

When such solutions warm up as they do in the home, considerable carbon dioxide escapes for this gas will dissolve to about twice as great an extent in ice water as it will at ordinary room temperature. As the bubbles come out of the water and try to escape they are trapped in a thin liquid film and a foam forms at the top of the container.—Dr. Albert L. Elder, chemist.

QUESTION 3. Would lack or abundance of sunlight cause a difference in a man's height?

ANSWER. Exposure to sunlight or any other climatic condition would have nothing to do with the stature of man or any of his other physical characteristics.

The stature of man is made up of the length of his trunk and the length of his legs. Some persons inherit long legs and short trunks; some persons inherit short legs and long trunks, and these two classes of persons may be of the same height. Body height is a matter of inheritance.—Dr. Ernest Reed, geneticist.

QUESTION 4. Will custards or custard pies cause ptomaine poisoning if left overnight in the icebox?

ANSWER. Ptomaine poisoning never occurs and never has occurred. The cases of food poisoning formerly ascribed to ptomaine poisoning are now known to be due to a variety of other causes.

Of course, it may seem to the patient and his friends somewhat like hair-splitting to insist that the poisoning is due to bacterial toxins or infections rather than ptomaine poisoning but it is nevertheless, important as a matter of record, to know that ptomaines are never responsible.

Foods of the type of custards frequently cause food poisoning. If certain strains of bacteria of the type called staphylococcus are introduced into custard and similar foods with a high moisture and sugar content they are likely to multiply and produce very complex substances known as endotoxins which may cause rather violent digestive upsets. The bacteria which produce these endotoxins are the same type that cause boils in human tissues.

Such bacteria grow most rapidly at body temperature and very slowly or not at all at refrigerator temperature. Therefore, custards and similar foods are much safer if kept in the refrigerator than out of it.—Prof. Henry Jones, bacteriologist.

QUESTION 5. What would prevent the peach borer from breeding on peach and sweet cherry trees?

ANSWER. There are two types of peach and cherry tree borer. One type attacks a tree from the ground around its base and the other type attacks the tree by entering through wounds in the tree's tissue.

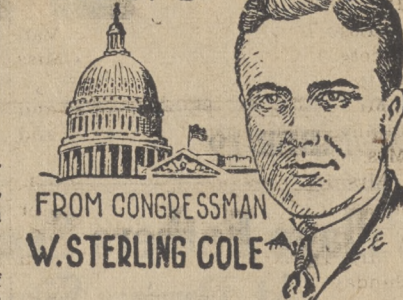

To kill the ground type of borer, first prepare the ground around the base of the tree. Then, place a circle of paradiichloride benzene, sometimes called paricide, upon the surface of the earth. Do not let this chemical touch the tree. Cover the chemical with earth and leave it as it is.

The gas formed by this chemical is heavier than air and fills into the crevices of the ground killing the grubs of the borer.—Dr. J. M. Reber, zoologist.

Danville.—About 40 members of the Rochester Airports Association plan a mass flight to the local airport Saturday, May 25. They will remain over night and return to Rochester Sunday.

WASHINGTON
NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN
W. STERLING COLE

When will Congress adjourn? That's the question which comes from many letters from home. Sam Rayburn as majority leader and John Taber, minority ranking member on the Appropriations Committee figured that out the other day. It all depends on when the last appropriation bill is passed and whether or not the Senate stages a filibuster on the anti-lynching bill. But chances are that adjournment can come any day between June 8 and June 15.

There are but two more appropriations bills to come up. The next is the relief bill which is scheduled to come up May 7. Then comes the last deficiency bill, scheduled for May 21. It will take about two weeks from the passage of that bill until adjournment can be reached. The new relief bill will call for around a billion and a half dollars. The last deficiency bill will carry around a million and a half dollars. Total appropriations during this year will be close to thirteen billion dollars, compared to around fourteen billions a year ago.

The Senate Monopoly Committee has heard testimony to the effect that the factory worker is not the only class to be displaced by modern machinery. The tractor, mechanical corn picker, combine, milk machine and a host of other mechanical devices has resulted in 1,500,000 unemployed farmers who cannot find work until new channels of consumption are opened. Figures were presented showing that in 1915 there were 30,000 tractors on our farms as compared with 1,600,000 in 1939.

Speaker Bankhead is sick. He has gone to Florida. He has lost fifteen pounds in the past few months. A few years ago he stayed away from the House throughout the session on account of illness. Then former Speaker Joe Byrnes passed away and Mr. Bankhead took over the job. It has been a hard grind for him and he shows it. "I want to be away from the crowds—somewhere where I can't hear the telephone ring for a long time," he tells his intimate friends. Mr. Bankhead has heart trouble, an ailment affecting many other members right now.

There has been introduced in the House a bill known as H. R. x 8553 which makes it a crime against the United States to transport convict made goods in interstate commerce.

The problem of providing useful work for prison inmates and at the same time keep down to the lowest possible minimum, the competition between convict labor and free labor is a vexing one. Many state laws prohibit the sale of prison made goods on the open market. In most every instance the production of goods in penal institutions is solely for the purpose of rehabilitating inmates by teaching them useful trades or occupations. The disposal of the goods after they are made, whether they are given to the poor or sold to the highest bidder must of necessity affect labor outside of prison, for there is nothing made in prison that cannot be duplicated outside.

On the way to enactment into law is House Joint Resolution 437 which authorizes the President of the United States to proclaim the last Sunday in May of each year as Citizenship Day for the recognition, observance and commemoration of American citizenship. Recent events in Europe have impressed firmly in the minds of many of our adopted citizens, the blessings of American citizenship.

COMMUNICATION

Dear Editor:
What would be your reaction, if on entering your town by way of Rathbone road, you saw a nicely mowed lawn with perhaps some attractive flowers and shrubs? Would you not be likely to say, "This is a pleasing and favorable entrance to our town?"

It would certainly be an improvement over the dump we have at the entrance now. It seems logical to me, that the swamp could be filled in with dirt and smoothed and planted. You may wonder where that much dirt would be obtained. Why not get it up the narrows? Every spring truck-loads have to be hauled away because of the slides. Let's have them bring it to the entrance of our town. The last time I drove past, the sight was disgraceful! Tin cans, papers, etc., were on both sides of the road.

People are inclined to judge a town by their first view of it. Is this the way we want ours judged?

Blood Tests Aid Mothers-to-Be Says Dr. Bean

Article III

Protection of the expectant mother and her unborn baby from the disastrous effects of syphilis is one of the most hopeful and fundamental of the various public health measures in the syphilis control program, Dr. Stuart H. Bean, health officer of Addison and Rathbone, said today in a public statement on maternal health.

"A blood test in pregnancy may reveal the necessity for treatment, and if such treatment can be started and continued from the fifth month of pregnancy, the birth of a baby free from the disease is practically assured," he said.

"When science reveals the cause of a disease and develops a remedy, two powerful weapons for control have been placed in the hands of the physician; to cure those afflicted and as in the case of syphilis, to prevent its occurrence in the next generation of children.

"All parents want healthy, normal children; the State wants healthy adults, able to assume their share of the responsibilities of life.

"The untold anguish and suffering, the economic burden to family and the public, makes the control of syphilis a major task in every state of the Union. Realization of this has brought about legislation, all over the country, to require by law the testing of young couples contemplating marriage, and of expectant mothers during pregnancy.

The means of testing and treatment have been made available to every citizen needing care but unable to command it through private means. The physicians, the health departments, the hospitals, stand ready to aid toward this end; and if those suffering from the untreated disease, even though they seem to be well, at the moment, would seek and accept treatment and follow medical direction, this enemy of mankind could be wiped out in a generation.

"Modern parents seek the best medical care within their means, as soon as the baby is expected. They cooperate with the physician fully so that their child may be born endowed with health and free from crippling defect.

"Public funds have been made available; facilities have been established, but all these need one thing for 100 per cent success—the full cooperation of the afflicted individual.

"Any celebration of Mothers' Day would be incomplete if it did not include in its message to the community information concerning the need to conserve mother and child life by every means at hand; and one of those means is the discovery and treatment of syphilis in pregnant women."

Ad Club Discusses Community Chest, Highways, and Scouting

Varied program after dinner in Eagle Hotel Wednesday—Sales Day planned—Donates to AHS Orchestra—W. G. Kellogg speaks on county road expenses—Floyd English outlines Boy Scout program

Advertising Club members learned about the Steuben County Highway appropriations, about Boy Scouting and several interesting programs at the meeting held Wednesday noon in the Eagle Hotel. A dinner preceded the program. The opening prayer was given by the Rev. Nicholas Van Cossaboon of the Methodist Church. The Rev. John V. Axtell was song leader and the closing prayer was given by the Rev. Russell O. Kirsch of the Episcopal Church. Miss Janet Taylor was accompanist for the program of songs. There were 35 present.

At the introduction of guests Walter Goff presented Louis R. Bennett, assistant county commissioner of highways, Mr. Talbot of the Allegany County Highway Department and Mr. Angus of the Good Road Machinery Company. Dr. Amos G. Stiker presented James Clark of Erwins.

Alternate Meetings

The club voted to continue the alternate evening and noon meetings. There will be no Wednesday afternoon closing of stores for the time being as the proposal was rejected by a few merchants and it had to be unanimous.

John Davis, Luzerne Barr, Guy Ricker and Jay Mose are members of the Sales Day committee which will report at the next meeting. Ray S. Brown proposed that the club send a telegram to Washington in favor of the waterways control bill. This was voted after some discussion.

Community Chest

Andrew Knebel spoke of the monotony of continuous solicitation here and suggested a community chest to eliminate many of the problems here. He asked the men to discuss this among themselves and take action later. Attorney Charles Salerno moved the appointment of a committee to investigate the proposal. Andrew W. Knebel is chairman and Mr. Salerno, Melvin G. Hubbs and Harry Mullen are members of the committee.

Annual election of officers is to be held at the next meeting. The nominating committee is headed by Walter M. Goff with Matthew Whitmore, the Rev. Mondula C. Johns and "The Bell Man" by Forsyth. A string orchestra will give the following selections, "Dance a l'Antique" by Max Fischel, a selection from the Handel Opera, "Rinaldo" and "The Ride" from an old German composition.

The closing numbers on the program will be given as follows, "Sonatina in G Major" by Beethoven, "Japanese Intermezzo" by Wharton and "The Talsman Overture" by Brockton to close the program.

Scouting

Floyd English, vice president of the Steuben Area Boy Scout Council and finance chairman of the Council gave a short resume of Scouting as follows: "Steuben Area Council has had four dynamic leaders since it started. Each has been interested in a different phase of Scouting with the same objective in view. Amery Houtman was interested in advancement, Davis Gray was interested in the development of records and Peter Schumaker, the present president, is interested in rural Scouting in the smaller troops.

Leadership

"Scouts must have leadership. You remember unpleasant experiences from teachers who did not have the right leadership ability for children. You men can aid Scouting by your example and enthusiasm. Where there is interest in Scouting, the financial drive and other finance matters take care of themselves.

"Make yourselves available for boys seeking merit badge advancement in your prospective lines of work. Attend troop meetings, assist your troop committee. You cannot buy the services of some of the men donating their time to Scouting. If all men in Scouting were paid, Scouting would lose its effectiveness. It is the volunteer workers who make Scouting.

"Thirty-eight of every 100 boys in America between the ages of 12 and 15 inclusive are interested in the Boy Scout movement". He then gave some personal experiences as a father of an Eagle Scout and also outlined the various expenditures in the council which requires a budget of $11,000. Among the items mentioned were: Salaries of the Executive and assistant Wally Hill and Don Paul, $5,100; two girls in offices, $1,800; insurance and telephone, $526; office supplies, $300; postage, $450; publicity and printing $125; trips and supervision, $1200; Camp Gorton, $3322; jamboree, $100; emblems, $350; contribution to National Headquarters, $250; interest, $50; office equipment, $100 and cubbing $100.

Knights Lose To Hornell And Bath

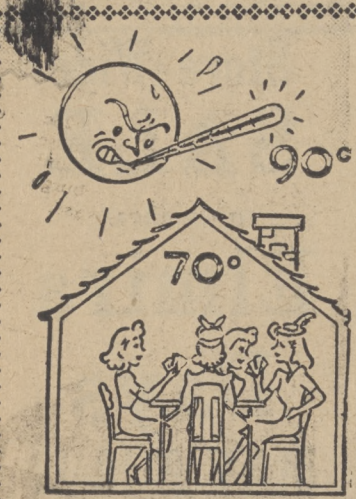

Addison's baseball nine dropped two in the scholastic leagues in the past week, dropping a free hitting game to Hornell Monday 9 to 2 and losing by a one run margin to Bath Tuesday afternoon 6 to 5.

The Hornell game was close until Thomson was knocked out of the game when he and Catcher Matthew Whitmore collided and Thomson was out. Up to that time he held the visitors to three hits. O'Connor went in to pitch and was struck in the side by a batted ball adding to the casualties of the Knights. The visitors scored six runs in the fifth inning with Hagadorn leading the way with three hits in four trips to the plate.

In the Bath game the winners took the lead in the second inning and held it throughout the game, although there was a question in the final inning when Addison started a rally which netted two runs and almost a third to tie up the game. Beekman had 14 strikeouts, Addison plays Cansiteo here Friday and Bath here Thursday, May 16.

Ag Students Plan Banquet to Dads
•Wed., May 15

The seventh annual Father and Son banquet of the Future Farmers of America, of the Addison High School will be held Wednesday, May 15, the purpose being to get the fathers and sons together to get the work of the Chapter and to get acquainted with the school and its personnel.

The guest speaker this year will be Dr. A. K. Getman, chief of the Agriculture Bureau at Albany. Dr. Getman has spoken at Addison at similar Father and Son banquets in the past and all those who have heard him were enthusiastic regarding his talk. His topic this year will be "The Future of the American Youth".

In addition to Dr. Getman's talk short talks will be given by local men interested in the F.F.A. chapters.

Degrees which have been earned by local F.F.A. members will be awarded at this time. These include the Green Hand or freshman degree, the Future Farmer or upper classmen's degree and the County degree. Certain qualifications are required for one of these degrees. These include a high standard of scholarship, practice, leadership, scholarship, other activities and the keeping of adequate records.

To Improve Potato Quality
The students of vocational agriculture of Addison High School in order to improve the type, production, and eating quality of the potatoes grown in this locality have secured certified seed for most of the potato projects for the coming year.

This seed was secured through the New York State Cooperative Seed Improvement Association in conjunction with the 4-H Clubs of Steuben County under the direction of Leon Taylor. Certified seed potatoes are those which have been inspected by state inspectors while growing and found to be free of various diseases. This seed usually produces from fifteen to thirty per cent higher yield than does common seed, however after a few years they also tend to "run out", that is produce fewer or bring forth a smaller yield each year. By roguing, taking out the diseased plants while growing, a grower can largely certify his own seed, especially if he will pull up and discard plants which show any mosaic, wilt, streak, etc., also by using care in saving seed from only the best hills if the potatoes are dug by hand. The seed will last a reasonable length of time. Virus diseases are transmitted from an infected plant to a healthy one by leaf hopper and other insects. There is no way of treating for virus except by roguing and use of disease free seed.

In addition to the use of certified seed many of the students are treating their seed with yellow oxide mercury for skin born diseases such as scab and rhizoctonia. This is a cheap and effective method to mercury for skin borne diseases.

It is expected that between one hundred and two hundred bushels of seed will be thus treated this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Smith, sons Jeffrey, Jr., and Thomas and Mrs. Cassie Smith called on Menzo Willard in Knoxville Monday evening.
